Labour plans to increase National Insurance next year for workers earning more than £20,000 a year. Both workers and employers will have to pay 1p in the pound extra. The Conservatives say they will cancel this rise for all workers earning less than £45,000 a year, and find the money from government efficiency savings. Do you think the Conservatives are right or wrong to propose cancelling this rise in National Insurance?
Right - higher National Insurance is a tax on jobs that will harm Britain's economic recovery	33	32	33	91	8	34	36	33	33	30	33	35	37	29	32	37	28	35
Wrong - the Tories won't in practice find the efficiency savings, so their sums won't add up	56	57	57	3	85	57	53	59	54	53	58	57	54	58	59	53	65	47
